THE GUARD-MOUNT TAKEN FROM THE STATE RANK AND FILE.

The Governor's Nomination is at Present the "Certainty of Uncertainty." Headly, Thurman and Others Republican State Convention.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 19.—The reports from the different counties throughout the state had the effect of making the Democratic primaries a rather tame affair. These reports, almost to a county, showed that Governor Headly will have a walk-over for re-nomination, that is, if instructions go for anything. The uncertainty surrounding the candidacy of ex-Senator Thurman, who, throughout the past few weeks has flirted with the nomination, also had its effect. Had he come out and boldly announced himself as a candidate and not left this to his friends, while he kept claiming that he was not in the race, Thurman might have made a good showing in the convention. In this county he had quite a boom for the past week, but just what those delegates who now claim to be for Thurman will do in the convention is the question. Some of Thurman's friends on the street were still hopeful, and claimed that they could count upon at least thirty votes in the Hamilton county delegation.

Allen G. Thurman, a large number of Thurman's friends will leave the city for Columbus. They intend to do all they can to make a legitimate way for Thurman, and, if they receive any encouragement, a lively time may be expected. In several wards tickets were voted which bore Thurman's name for governor. In all of these wards the Thurman men were victorious. Particularly was this the case in the Twelfth ward.

The Republicans.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 19.—The Republican state committee will be here Thursday evening and Friday for the purpose of deciding as to whether they will call another state convention for the purpose of naming a candidate for the supreme bench vacancy.

The opinion prevails that the committee will take the advice of Senator Sherman and fill the place on the ticket without further trouble or annoyance.

There are numerous factions urging candidates for the place, but the claims of all will be ignored unless they suit the ideas of the majority of the committee.

Friends in the track.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 19.—Word from the Hocking valley to the effect that the greatest excitement reigns in the vicinity of Shawnee, Coshocton county, Ohio, on account of the attempt to blow up the residence of Hugh Kinney, a miner.

The dastardly work, it is claimed, was done by miners and threats of violence are freely indulged in.

The worst sort of feeling prevails among the miners on account of the recent cut in wages and the failure of a strike last week.

The miners agreed to remain at work because months of idleness and perhaps starvation looked them square in the face.

The operators are at present on top, but it looks as if there might be bloody and swift work among the miners within the next ten days unless some change.

Attempts similar to the one at Shawnee are looked for at any day, to be followed by a general strike. There is great uneasiness among both miners and operators.

Their Time Had Come.

WILKESBARE, Pa., Aug. 19.—A married Hungarian woman left her husband to live with her lover, Andrew Urdi. The two frequently quarreled. He bought a revolver and some cakes and went to the woman's apartments. He gave her the cakes, telling her to eat them, as they were the last things he would buy for her. He also said he had come to shoot her. The woman laughed at Urdi, but when he after dinner he told her to bid her children good-by, as her time had come, she became alarmed and ran out of the house. He followed and fired at her, the shot taking effect in the neck and inflicting a mortal wound. He then placed the revolver to his throat and fired, the ball passing through his windpipe and entering the base of his brain, instantly killing him. The coroner has been notified.

Business.

Bismarck, Dak., Aug. 19.—Two cowboys named Jack Waters and Jim Randall quarreled in the Dog Den mountains recently over the disposition of a horse that found they were both claiming to own. Both were killed before the fight was over. It was supposed that the cowboys tried to escape, but was caught by a ranchman, who witnessed the duel from his ranch.

the proceedings his influence will be felt to yet in conjecture. But that he will be heard from indirectly there can be no doubt, as he winds the dictatorial wand among a large faction of Ohio's Democracy.

PANAMA CANAL CUT.

SLOW PROGRESS OF THE WORK AND AN UNFAVORABLE P. O. SPECT.

Mr. Menocal's Survey Discloses Some Startling Facts—The Few Excavations Will Hardly Pass "Canal" Muster. Washington—National News.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—It will be remembered that in the latter part of the fall of 1884 Secretary Chandler ordered Civil Engineer Menocal, United States navy, to proceed to Nicaragua for the purpose of revising estimates for the construction of the Nicaragua interoceanic canal. In compliance with his orders he had occasion to cross the Isthmus of Panama, during which he devoted his entire time to an inspection of the work on the Panama canal. Mr. Menocal has just finished his official report to the secretary of the navy. The following abstract has been made from that report, showing the actual progress of the work, on the condition of the Panama canal as determined by careful observations made on the line of the work in the month of January and the latter part of May last, while Mr. Menocal was on his way to and from Nicaragua in charge of the surveying party.

These facts, Mr. Menocal's survey is that he finds that work has been attacked only on twenty-three out of the seventy-five kilometers comprising the canal proper, and the dredging in the bay of Panama, leaving fifty-two kilometers or 70 per cent. of the whole distance as yet untouched. In the latter part of May, when Mr. Menocal had been partially or totally suspended at several points where work had been previously done to a greater or less extent. Mr. Menocal concludes:

"While it would be impossible to arrive at the exact amount of excavation done at the several points along the line without careful measurements, which I was not able to do, a detailed examination of the different works and the information furnished by responsible contractors lead me to the conclusion that 3,000,000 cubic meters is a liberal estimate of the work removed up to the 1st of May. The company reports a total cube of 14,000,000 meters. The total amount of excavation reported by the officers of the company as required for the completion of the canal is 15,000,000 cubic meters. According to my estimate the work done represents, therefore, less than 2 per cent. of the total cube to be removed, and, accepting the figures of the company as correct, the proportion will still be less than 2 per cent. of the total cube to be removed. But thus far the excavations have been confined to the surface, and dredging in soft material to a soft depth, and the above percentages do not, therefore, represent the proportional cost of the work done, which I believe can not be estimated at more than 3 or 4 per cent. of the total cost of the canal.

There are other works demanding large expenditures and involving the success of the whole scheme, which have not yet been attacked. "It is now conceded by all familiar with the conditions of the canal, that unless the charges river bed, which is situated at the side of the dam show no rock at great depth, which adds another difficulty in the excavation of such a work, it is estimated to be about a mile long, and the hydrostatic pressure at its base, at canal level, will be 20,000 lbs. per square foot. The plans are not yet decided upon.

"The past efforts of the company have been directed to a reduction of the abrupt elevations; the cutting down of hillsides and dredging in the Colon and Gatun sections. If a line be drawn on the profile of the canal, the line of the level of the canal, it may be safely stated that, with the exception of the dredging and some insignificant excavations, across some of the river beds below the line, where the heavy work is concentrated, nothing whatever has been accomplished.

"Without access to the books of the company it would be difficult to arrive with any degree of precision at the amount of money already spent on the canal. It is well known, however, that the present obligations of the company, including the 50 per cent. on the original shares uncalled for, amount to $18,750,000, and that on the securities the company has raised in cash $11,875,000, bearing an annual interest of $9,687,500.

"Besides the amount of currency already advanced, the company has $30,000,000 as available resources in the uncalled 50 per cent. of the capital stock, and a possible total of $141,875,000 of cash receipts.

"Of this amount the company has spent in the canal and Panama railroad up to May 1, $8,125,000.

"The last estimate of the cost of the canal made by M. de Lesseps footed up to $121,000,000, which amount is not less than five times the amount already spent in the location and clearing the line of the canal, the plant and work of excavation not yet completed, and the removal of the material to be excavated.

"The total cube of excavation, lately reported to be 15,000,000 cubic meters, but which is likely to be increased to 20,000,000 cubic meters. There remains, therefore, but $30,000,000 of that estimate of cost; for the removal of six times the amount of the total cube of excavation, comprising the most expensive portions of that kind of work, and for the works required for the control of the River Chagres and at Panama and Aspinwall, estimated by the engineers of the company at $21,000,000.

"M. de Lesseps has repeatedly stated that the Panama canal presented less difficulties of construction than that of Suez. It seems fair to infer, therefore, that he cannot take exception to any criticism that may be advanced on the management of the Panama canal. Under the present mismanagement, and with the most important problem involving the practicability of the canal yet unsolved, would be impossible to estimate at the present time, with any degree of approximation, the probable ultimate cost of the canal. However, taking the most favorable view of the situation, and admitting that the river Chagres can be controlled as proposed, and for the amount estimated, and that the mismanagement, waste and extravagance prevailing from the inception of the scheme to the extent of bringing the whole affair to the border of a disastrous bankruptcy be thoroughly corrected, it may be safely stated that the canal cannot be completed for less than $75,000,000, exclusive of interest on capital, commission, etc., in addition to what has already been spent, or a total cost for the actual cost of the works of $75,000,000. Now, to raise this sum of money and the annual cash interest, with the present credit of the company unimpaired, and supposing that the canal will be completed in fourteen years, will raise the obligations of the company to $651,000,000."

Jefferson Davis.

PORT WORTH, Tex., Aug. 19.—The following letter was received by Chairman Van Zandt from Jefferson Davis in response to the resolution telegraphed to him during the recent great Confederate reunion here:

"BEAUFORT, Miss., Aug. 19.—"My Dear Sir:—Your telegram of the 16th was forwarded by mail from Mississippi City. We have no telegraphic station here, and, therefore, the receipt of your dispatch was delayed, and for the same reason I could not send you an answer so as to reach you before the meeting had adjourned. The kind words of the ex-Confederates and comrades and friends, are to me most gratifying. As far as possible, please assure all associated with you of the cordial appreciation and sincere esteem with which I am, faithfully yours, "JEFFERSON DAVIS."

Mr. Miles Indisposed.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 19.—A Madison dispatch asserts that Postmaster General Miles is suffering from a nervous trouble, brought on by overwork.

The Freaks of Fate.

MARTIN'S VALLEY, Pa., Aug. 19.—Mrs. Sarah Truby of this city is an aged widow. Her husband, who died in 1848, worked on the East Branch railroad. Jason, another son aged 36 was an employee on the state quarries. Wynnan, a third son thirty-eight years old, was a miller. They lived in a small village, having no families of their own. John, while running to turn a switch, and broke his neck. On Saturday morning before news of John's death reached home Jason was in a fit of rage, and his recent rival having filled it with water. James Whitaker arrived in the village with the news of John Truby's death and met William Jackson, who was hearing the tidings of Jason's fate at the same time. The two walked together to the village where they met Wynnan Truby to break the news to him first. There was a crowd about the mill, and as the messengers arrived on the scene, men were carrying John Truby's dead body out of his building. He had been suffocated in a grain bin. Less than twelve hours intervened between the death of the first brother and the second. The news of the death of her sons so prostrated Mrs. Truby that her life is despaired.

"Baby Bandler's" Father.

New York, Aug. 19.—Wm. Bindley, aged fifty years, a musician who used to be employed at variety performances, called at Patrick Mulvaney's liquor store in Brooklyn. He went to a back room and took a seat at a table. In a short time the report of a pistol brought the saloonman to the room. He found Bindley lying on the floor with blood flowing from a wound in the right temple. On the table a four-chamber Smith's revolver with one chamber empty and the nose gone, lay. "279 Pearl street, Brooklyn. My name is Wm. Bindley, better known as Professor Bindley. I lost my money and lost my youngest daughter, known as 'Baby Bandler.' I am left without support or means. I have tried to sell what I have, but have failed. My youngest daughter is now named Mrs. T. E. Mills, and her house is 57 West Twelfth street, New York. I have no money, and I am in need of money. I have a daughter named Mary, who is now in the hands of a man named Harry. My wife died in misery. May God spare my soul. Good-bye to my friends. A doctor was quick to pronounce that I was the man dead. Since the death of my daughter, which known on the variety stage as 'Baby Bandler,' I have been despondent and lately I have been without means."

A Dastardly Outrage.

WACO, Tex., Aug. 19.—A great outrage was perpetrated at Aquila, this (McLenan) county, a report of which has just arrived in this city. It seems that the Rev. Clement Trimble, of Brooklyn, N. Y., has been in this county for some time, lecturing to the negroes to the neglect of his duties with the same with a magic lantern and beautiful scenes representing incidents in the life of the Saviour as well as the topography of the Holy Land. It seems that the young men of Aquila, which is twenty-two miles from this city, prevented him from delivering his lecture, although he was provided with a regular license, took away his lantern and injured his scenes in many ways. In fact, destroying his outfit altogether, after which they escorted him to the depot, where there was a Balcock fire extinguisher which they turned upon him, after which he was allowed to escape, leaving behind him his magic lantern and the wreck of his show. He walked to Waco, the people on the way refusing him, as he alleges, even a drink of water.

Smugglers.

WATERLOO, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Solomon Vermylen owns a large store in Belleville, Ontario. Three months ago he came to this city with his wife and opened a small furniture store at No. 100 Main street. He is one of the most aristocratic ladies of the city at greatly reduced prices. Special inspection of Customs Collector's agents and stock, finding fully one thousand dollars worth of smuggled goods. Mr. Vermylen and two girls have been engaged in smuggling for some months, concealing the goods in their bundles and the stocks in their dress skirts.

The Mason County Teachers' Institute.
The Mason County Teachers' Institute
has been in session two days. The meeting is one of unusual interest. There is a large attendance of teachers and the discussions are spirited. Your reporter will not attempt to give a full account of all the work of the institute up to this time, but will notice somewhat the work of this (Tuesday) afternoon.

The subject of whispering and studying in school was before the meeting.
Mr. Bullock opened the discussion. He advocated a quiet and orderly school and gave an example, which he pronounced the best school he had ever seen. Mr. Willie Berry followed in a very interesting speech, in which he said that he had always tried to have school free of whispering but had never succeeded. Miss Lattie McLeod thought the girls were the leaders in this form of disorder. Mr. Willitt had experienced this trouble and tried the self-reporting system and found it led to the wrong part of the pupils. Mrs. McDaniel had found that the boys gave more trouble in this respect than the girls, and there was quite a lively controversy for a while.

Professor Kinney, the cotest of some interesting remarks said that he kept his pupils so busy that they did not have time to whisper. Miss Julia Porter thought that the pupils, when they whisper and lose time, should be kept in after school hours to make up the time. This view was opposed by Miss Neely Howe, who said study should never be used as punishment. Mr. Glasscock maintained that talking and whispering was a necessary evil, and it was a waste of time to try to prevent it. That the most the teacher could do was to keep it in reasonable bounds. The debate on the question was closed by Professor Kinney in a very practical talk, embracing a recapitulation of the discussion, full of valuable hints to the young teacher.

The discussion of the subject of non-attendance was quite as interesting, but we find that space will not allow anything like a report. The subject was introduced by Professor Chandler, of Mt.
Olivet. He was followed by Professor Kinney. Both were practical and to the point. Professor Kinney proposed the publication of school manual, giving the name of each pupil and the number of days in school and number of times tardy. This struck me as a good plan and I hope to see it put in practice in our city schools.

After recess the subject of arithmetic, how to assign and conduct the work of primary classes, was the order of the day.
The subject was presented by Professor Berry and Professor Kinney in a very able manner. Superintendent Galbraith closed the discussion and presented a form of class drill for the presentation of the rules, that we think can not fail to make the school a place of interest and even the duller pupil. Then the question box opened and it almost revealed Par-adise's box in the profusion of its gifts.
If you would know just how much can be gotten out of this box come and see Superintendent Galbraith preside over it just once.
